Forecast for Tuesday 25 May 2021

Weather: Cloudy damp start then some brighter or sunny spells developing this morning however there will be frequent showers over the hills. Some of the showers will group to give longer periods of rain but during the afternoon the showers will get less frequent with more in the way of sunshine particularly for more northern ranges. Showers will tend to die out this evening with a generally bright evening in the hills.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 60% chance, cloud shrouding the munro tops at times especially as showers group together or heavier showers move through the area, more northerly hills will see more in the way of lower cloud.

Visibility: Patches of poor visibility at first with cloud bases around 400m especially in the north. During the morning the cloud bases will lift and break to be above the summits but will lower once again in heavier showers or when showers group to give longer spells of rain, then bases will be around 600m temporarily. Further south west around Loch Rannoch tops will generally be clear. Outwith showers in the afternoon visibility will be very good with good views likely and showers should be easy to spot approaching.

Met Office Aberdeen Meteorologist's View

Feeling very cool again in fresh northerly winds especially in heavier showers with sleet, quite a wintery feel with freezing level around the highest summits. Watercourses are likely to be quite full given previous days rain and very wet boggy ground in places.

Forecast for Wednesday 26 May 2021

Weather: Cloudy overnight with a few showers expected, some areas in the west will likely stay dry overnight. Some sunny spells developing and then a few showers during the morning. These will die out in the afternoon with some bright and sunny conditions likely, a dry and clear night ahead, feeling warmer by the afternoon too.

Maximum wind: Northwesterly 10 -15 mph gusts of 25mph during the morning will moderate in the afternoon.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 80%, tops generally clear but perhaps a few patches of cloud early in the morning and in any heavier showers especially for northern peaks.

Visibility: Generally very good visibility in the northerly airstream but visibility dipping in any heavier showers and if cloud gathers over munro tops for a time.

Temperature: Glens: Plus 5 rising to 13 Celsius.
At 800m: Plus 3 rising to 6 Celsius.
Freezing level: Above the summits.
